Smith Nominated; Drew Policy Flayed, 'Obstructive, Vicious'

J. E. "Jack" Smith was unanimously returned as Liberal candidate for York North in the June 27 election at a riding convention and annual meeting in Armour Heights public school Saturday. Mr. Smith was the sitting member for the riding in the session just ended. One other nominee, James Colby, withdrew his name.

The meeting which crowded the school auditorium was addressed by the Hon. Lionel Chevrier, Minister of Transport, and N. L. Mathews, K.C., president of the Ontario Liberal Association. Also present were David Croll, candidate for Spadina, Vern. Singer, president of the Ontario Young Liberals, W.

Nominated unanimously as candidate in the federal election, J. E. "Jack" Smith, sitting Liberal member for York North in the last session of parliament, told a large convention audience that the Liberal government "had stood the test of years," that its record "was not that of promises, but of achievement."

Speaking Saturday at Armour Heights public school, he said that in the four years since the last election, 278,000 houses had been built, aid given to the British Empire and other countries of Europe and yet the national debt had been reduced by $1,625 millions. The Abbott budget, in line with its predecessors since the war, has maintained the policy of tax reduction, this year by $1,300 millions.

"We've increased old-age pensions, veterans' pensions and allowances. We inaugurated and paid out in family allowances $259,000,000 a year. We've begun a $30,000,000 a year system of health grants."

Mr. Smith told his audience the Liberal government "has stood the test of years. It is the government which gave us leadership through the dark days of World War II and led us through the reconstruction period to the present time, when we are in such a happy position among the nations of the world."

He recalled that in four years under Liberal leadership, Canada has re-absorbed 1,000,000 veterans into civilian life, "with a vast program of re-establishment and farm settlement, vocational training and university education."

"The Hon. Lionel Chevrier, minister of transport, flailed the Progressive Conservative party leadership which has 'one policy in Quebec and another in Ontario.' Since Mr. Drew went to Ottawa, he said, the leader of the opposition has done nothing but obstruct the business of the country with charges founded on half-truths.

"He has made many vicious charges against both the government and private enterprise," said Mr. Chevrier, "but whenever he is asked to substantiate his charges, he is never able to do so."

"When George Drew was leader of the opposition in Ontario," Mr. Chevrier continued, "he laughed and sneered at the idea of there being nine provincial governments in Canada."

"But when he became premier of Ontario his views were entirely changed. He no longer had any desire for one strong federal government . . . he described the federal government as a horrible monster."

"He is now in Ottawa as leader of the opposition and he is trying to make the 'monster' more horrible than ever by charging there are Communists" (Page 12, Column 6)

Endmen James Walker, Eugene McCaffrey, Jack Luesby and W. M. Cockburn line up for inspection at the Lions Minstrel Show.

Mr. Interlocutor Alex. Eves cries "Begone you rascal!" to a red-headed stranger who wandered on stage claiming, at this point, that he was Billy Andrews. The Lions Minstrels will present an encore Thursday, May 19, at the town hall. They appear in Schomberg Wednesday, May 18. Photos by Budd.

Minstrels Called Back For Encore

Newmarket—After playing to full houses Tuesday to Friday, the Lions Club Minstrel show under the direction of Alex Eves has bowed to popular demand and will present the show once again in the town hall on Thursday, May 19. The reserved seat plan has again been opened at Best's Drug Store. On Wednesday, the show plays at Schomberg under the auspices of the Schomberg Lions Club.

Hailed as "one of the best shows Newmarket has seen," the Lions Minstrels were assisted by Wm. Grieg and his orchestra, and by Terry Doane and Murray Huntley whose solos were the hits of the show. Standout performers were endmen Jimmy Walker, W. M. Cockburn, Jack Luesby and Gene McCaffrey. Mr. Eves piloted the show from his role of Mr. Interlocutor although more than somewhat harassed by a colored gent with red hair, red moustache, paunch and top hat who stopped the show every time he wandered on stage. He was later identified as the master of the drums, that soloist extraordinary, Augustus West.

Charles Boyd was roundly applauded for his "Caroline" and Jimmy Walker's version of Alabama Barbecue featured an original interpretation of the music and some fancy stepping by the soloist, Gene McCaffrey's Sleepy Time Down South rivalled the best in the business. Ken "Fleetfoot" Ponting brought a tear to the eyes of his audience as he sang the gambler's last request "Plant a Watermelon on My Grave and Let the Juice Soak Through."

John Hines shared a duet with McCaffrey in a colorful rendition of Cruising Down the River. Ken Johns, as the secretary, reading his report to a Lions club meeting, had the audience hanging on every word. George Byers as the visiting dignitary had much to say about the "dandy Lions" of Newmarket. Del Gibney's long distance call, full of suspense, Alex. Georgas and a harmonica troupe of Walker, Clare Hlodale and John Meyer were assisted by Senior West and his drum and violin.

Art Evans gave a shifty hippy version of how to shake those feet and clap those hands in a solo dance number and encores which left him, and the audience breathless.

The chorus was in fine voice and clearly showed they enjoyed singing, while the orchestra was an entertaining and effective accompaniment. Members of the chorus were Les Barber, Sam Brookfield, Ken Bennington, Seneca Cook, Grant Dillane, Edie Gibson, Harold Gibson, Ken Mount, Ken Morton, Frank Smith, Gren Thompson, John West and Gerald Wainman as well as the other performers.

The orchestra included Austin Brammer, Marjory Blossdale, Isabelle Colville, Archie Colville, Harry Hodge, Hilda Tunley, Wilbert Henry, Harold Jackson, Ross Lee, Don Langford, Andrew Stouffer and Harry Toombs.

The show will be presented at Schomberg Wednesday, May 18, at the town hall Thursday, May 19. Reserved seats at Best's Drug Store.

Search For New Water Source; Conference Hears Proposals To Restore Wells As Demand Climbs

Newmarket—Drilling operations for water have been underway in recent weeks at the water works property at the south end of Main St. and at present the drilling equipment is working at a second attempt on the same property.

An additional source of water for Newmarket is being sought by the International Water Supply Co. on behalf of the town council's water and light committee and in the last year, has tried different test drills in and around town. So far there have been no encouraging signs of a source with a capacity large enough to be economical.

The first drilling at the water works property was given up after going down about 400 feet. At present, the drill has gone down 150 feet at the number two site on the same property, not more than 25 feet from the spot the first attempt was made. The decision is between the International Water Supply Co. and the council committee as to where test drills will be made. Chairman of the council committee is Reeve A. D. Evans.

In 1941 an excellent source for water was struck at Cotter St. which produced enough water that 750 gallons per minute could be pumped. The strike was heralded as a "bonanza" at the time and it is the town's best supply at present. Another well is situated on Srigley St.

A big factor in the difficulty of getting water supply in the Holland Valley is the lowering of ground water which supplies the wells. Conservation experts declare that stripping the land of woodlots and natural growth results in rapid run-off on the land and lowers the ground water table. It is a fact that a large plan for tree planting, conservation farming and flood control would raise the water table in the ground and increase the potential water supply.

It has been forecast that Aurora and Newmarket and the surrounding river valley face a water famine. It has been said that "Newmarket had better find water soon to keep up with the demand from its expansion." The experts say that a conservation authority is the answer to some of these problems.

Wm. R. Hamilton Praised For Rescue

William R. "Bill" Hamilton, an employee of Bell Telephone Company of Canada, is mentioned in the company's annual report as one of five employees who received citations and special awards during the year for meritorious public service.

Mr. Hamilton is the son of Mrs. O. P. Hamilton, formerly of Arden Ave., Newmarket, and the late Mr. Hamilton. He is now employed in Toronto by the Bell.

According to the Bell Telephone News, Mr. Hamilton, while fishing at Peterborough, heard cries for help. "Running to a nearby canal lock," the report continues, "he saw a woman struggling in the swirling water. Pausing only long enough to remove his shoes, he plunged in and rescued the woman who turned out to be his sister-in-law, Mrs. Helen Thornton. Her husband had made an unsuccessful attempt, but had collapsed from the effort and was saved by another rescuer."

Mr. Hamilton was born and educated in Newmarket. His wife and son, Douglas, lived here while he was in the air force (radar division). His family was well known here for their interest in all town activities. Mrs. Hamilton was active in war work, and in church, school and charitable work.

A banquet is being given Mr. Hamilton by the company when he will be presented with a citation of merit by the company. The company has already presented him with a nest of tables.

A special meeting of the York North C.C.F. Council was held at Richmond Hill on Thursday when election of officials and a committee to direct the campaign were appointed. Councilor Lorne Paynter, Newmarket, was appointed chairman of the election committee; Adam Reiter, Thornhill, was named as campaign manager. The recommendation of the candidate, A. H. Woods, that T. A. Weaver, Richmond Hill, be appointed official agent was approved.

The following will serve on the committee: Mrs. S. T. Bartlett and James Jensen of North York Township; George Engle-hage, Woodbridge, and Mrs. A. Reiter, Thornhill. David Lewis, national secretary of the C.C.F., will be the guest speaker at a public meeting to be held in Newmarket on Saturday, June 18.

CONDUCTS SERVICE

Newmarket—Rev. Amile Peterson arrived May 6 to take over the local Church of the Nazarene. He reports a very successful day on May 8, his first Sunday with his congregation.

Special Collections Aid In 'Clean-Up' Campaign

Newmarket—Clean-up week, sponsored by the Newmarket Horticultural Society is next week, May 16 to May 21, and needs the co-operation of every individual in town to make it successful. With the advent of the tourist season and if we want them to stop in Newmarket, "clean-up" is the word.

Pick-ups of garden refuse and junk will be on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons. For complete pick-ups, citizens are asked to phone F. Johnston, Newmarket 133w. Collections will be made of all kinds of rubbish.

A clean town is a prosperous town and the society asks everyone to protect flowers, shrubs and trees which are the means of beautification. Private properties, school grounds as well as the Main St. need a thorough spring cleaning and let's not throw papers and cigar packages on the streets. It is hoped that waste disposal buckets will be placed on Main St. in the near future to take care of waste paper.

Clean up and where necessary paint, repair and improve your property and don't wait for your neighbor to start the ball rolling.

Prepare Davis Dr. For Paving In '50

Newmarket—Davis Dr. between Yonge St. and Main St. will be graded and widened this year preparatory to being paved next year. Long a source of complaint because of its narrow roadway just west of town where there is a culvert and fill, and because of its roughness, the road has had steadily increasing use by summer traffic.

Drivers Toronto-bound on Yonge St. have been cutting along it to the third concession to hasten their trip to Toronto, and lake-bound travellers have used it to by-pass Newmarket's crowded Main St.

The road will eventually connect with the new Barrie highway by a clover-leaf and when the highway is opened, the traffic load will become still heavier. The work is being done by the Toronto and York Road Commission.

The commission has also been informed that the subway at Vandorf will be straightened and widened this year by the railway company. The subway, at an angle to the line of traffic, and quite narrow, has long been a source of contention between the railway and the commission.

Gail Goes for Walk As Main St. Searches

Newmarket—Two-year-old Gail Cutting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cutting, Roxborough St., can be considered one of the fastest walkers, for her age, in town. Last Friday morning she wandered away from a store where her mother was buying her a new pair of shoes. Her parents' search, which was joined in by several business men, failed to find her in any of the stores on Main St.

Gail was missed around 11 a.m., when unknown to anyone, she walked north on Main St. Fortunately her parents found her a little more than half an hour after she was first missed.

In that half-hour she had walked as far north as the Newmarket cemetery.

BOY SCOUTS

Newmarket—There will be a meeting of the Boy Scout committee (all the fathers of the boys), in the Scout Hall Friday night at 7:30 p.m.

Trumpet Band Wins First At Niagara

Newmarket Trumpet Band came back with first prize from Niagara Falls Saturday. Taking thus brought honor to Newmarket in their initial test of 1949. The trophy they annexed will be on display at Insley's Store.

Forty members of the Newmarket Veterans' Association, the local trumpet band was judged best in their class.

Nine top-notch bands from various parts of the province, as well as one from across the border, took part in the competition. The local drummers and trumpeters won strictly on their merits, playing and marching, as yet the band are without complete uniforms. The selection that carried the day for them was called "Susan Jane." Forty-nine members of the band out of a

Immunization Clinic For Infants, Pre-School Nurse's Office May 19

Newmarket—The next immunization clinic for infants and pre-school children will be held on May 19 at the public health nurse's office on Betsford St. when the third combined treatment against diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus will be administered by Dr. L. W. Dales, medical officer of health.

Mothers are requested to be prompt. Time of the clinic is 1:30-4:45 p.m. Vaccination against smallpox may also be given to this age group.

Boys and girls are asked to help their parents in their clean-up week efforts. They can get out the garden rake and give the lawn a once-over and help clear up any trash that's around.

Civic cleanliness is a virtue—let's cultivate it.

Restrict Cutting

The conservation group also recommended that the reforestation committee of county council pass a by-law controlling the private cutting of trees and also the subsidizing of woodlots by giving free fences to farmers to keep out cattle. It was felt that some control should be put on farmers selling woodlots; the greatest damage, it was said, is done by portable saw mills. Damage done by stripping the land of woodlots was exemplified on a farm near Newmarket where a few acres of woodlot was cleared. The ground level was so lowered that the water level in the farmer's well dropped four feet. Reeve Evans pointed out that these effects were met by the town in its search for water supplies.

Representatives of the Toronto and York planning board, the Department of Planning and Development and the Humber Valley Conservation authority attended the conference with reeves, wardens and other representatives as well as private citizens.

Favor Holland Authority

Eric W. Baker, chairman of the Humber Valley Conservation authority, favored the establishment of a Holland authority which would connect with the Humber authority at King twp. If a Holland River conservation authority were established, there would be a strip on the map from Lake Ontario to Lake Simcoe which would have the advantages of conservation planning and development.

Indicating that there have been misconceptions about the term "conservation," Mr. Baker said, "Flood control, as an example, can be compared with conservation as treatment for a fever is compared with staying healthy. The word 'recreation' has been fired on us too in some cases. Recreation is not our sole purpose, it is a by-product of conservation that pays dividends."

"Our greatest asset is public opinion," said Mr. Baker. "Fortunately, the press is becoming well informed on conservation so the public will be too."

The only action that has been made towards establishing a conservation authority in the Holland river valley was a resolution at the Aurora town council a few weeks ago to invite the municipal councils in the district to a meeting. The meeting, which would be the first step, had not been held by Saturday but it is believed that municipalities in the district would favor the establishment of an authority.

A. H. Richardson, chief conservation engineer with the Department of Planning and Development told Newmarket representatives, "You don't have to wait for someone else to take the lead."

W.A. MEETING

Newmarket—The Evening branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Anglican church is holding its monthly meeting next Monday evening, May 16, in the Parish Hall, when the Rector will give an address. The members of the Afternoon branch are invited to attend.

J. E. "JACK" SMITH

P. Mulock, Douglas McNish, president of Toronto and Yorks Liberal Federation, and riding representatives of all local women's and Young Liberal associations.

Collin Campbell was elected riding president in succession to Rose Linton of Aurora. Vice-presidents are Bruce MacMillan, Queensville, Charles VanZant, Newmarket, and William Kierstead, North York township, and representing the Young Liberals, James Colby, North York township. K. M. R. Stiver was elected treasurer and Peter Burt was returned as secretary.

The delegates were warned by Mr. Mathews that apathy and over-confidence could cost the Liberals victory. Mr. McNish said he had found a growing confidence in victory at the polls in conventions he had attended in Toronto and the Yorks. Mr. Croll, praising Mr. Smith for his qualities as a member of parliament, urged every effort to re-elect him and "sound the death knell of Tories for once and for all in York North."

All speakers emphasized the need for organization and effort by party workers, and warned that over-confidence could cost the party the election.

Veterans From Hamilton To Attend Pilgrimage

Newmarket—The Newmarket Veterans' Association has received word that units from the Hamilton Unit of the Canadian Corps and from Thorold and Port Colborne will be present for the second Annual Pilgrimage to the Newmarket Memorial in the Veterans' Plot at Newmarket cemetery on June 19.

Began last year when the memorial was dedicated, the Pilgrimage will bring veterans from all over the south-eastern and western sections of the province and from the United States.

Market Falls Off End Paper Collections

Newmarket—The Boy Scouts have discontinued indefinitely their collection of paper salvage. The move was made after dealers refused to handle paper salvage any more because of a drop in the market. The Scouts have on hand over ten tons of paper salvage which they have not been able to dispose of.

The paper salvage collections, begun during the war, were a source of revenue to the Scouts and their discontinuance is a blow to the Scouts' activities.

SOME FOOD FOR A FOUNDLING

The Humane Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals continually urges us to be kind to dumb animals. Perhaps, the animals who need kindness and sympathy most are ones like this three-week-old for cub, Tishy, now at the London zoo, after being found in the roadway. Tishy is being reared on the bottle by Miss Pat Trocker, supervisor of the children's zoo, who takes him home every night to make sure he gets a "round the clock" meal service.

And it looks now as if most of the undergraduates from Ontario universities needing summer employment will be able to find it by the end of the school year.

The situation with regard to permanent jobs for graduates is also promising.

However, MORE summer opportunities STILL are needed for undergraduates and permanent openings for graduates, especially for "Arts graduates" whose training has not fitted them for any particular industry, but who will react quickly to an employer's advantage after brief training on the job.

Officials, Experts Discuss Betterment of Simcoe Region

Jackson's Point—The development of the Lake Simcoe region was the theme of a planning conference at the Briars Golf Club last Saturday, sponsored by the Community Planning Association of Canada. The first community planning conference of its kind, it was proof that there are many who are looking ahead to a new era of development in the greater Toronto area and the creation of a greater metropolitan area between that city and Lake Simcoe.

Private citizens and representatives of municipal bodies, planning boards and industry listened to some of the top planning authorities in the province and elsewhere. People from the rural municipalities in the district from Orillia to Toronto found common problems to discuss with city planners.

Discussion groups were held on conservation, public recreation, housing accommodation and resort areas, highways and transportation, and economic development in small urban centres. Speakers were Arthur Bunnell, community planning consultant, Ontario Department of Planning and Development, F. G. Gardiner, chairman of Toronto and York Planning board, Bryce Browning, secretary-treasurer of the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district in Ohio.

Reeve J. D. Sibbald of Georgina township introduced the session by saying that Lake Simcoe is Toronto's summer playground. He said he wondered why the city did not take more interest in the fate of the country around.

Arthur Bunnell, community planning consultant for the department of planning and development, advised, "if something is going to be done to make provisions for regional planning, it must be done by the people in the whole area concerned. It must be regional, not local," he said.

"Lake Simcoe has great facilities," said Mr. Bunnell. "The present organization for the development of the lake region is inadequate, in fact there isn't any." He went on to say that the Planning Act can be a tool by which men can band themselves together into regional planning boards to study or report on matters concerning economic and industrial development in their area.

Touching on a point relevant to the south-east shore of the lake, he said, "Something should be done to reserve lands on Ontario water bodies for public use. There has never been any effort on the part of the province or the county to see that parts of the lake shore were reserved for the public."

F. G. Gardiner, chairman of the Toronto and York Planning board, spoke of the next 25 years as a period of development when the metropolitan area will extend farther north from the city. Greater Toronto now includes 12 municipalities around Toronto, stretching as far north as Steele's Corners, and has already gone farther north than that. Because of this rapid growth, the Toronto and York planning board was formed in 1947. Toronto and the 12 municipalities around it constitute a million people, he said.

Planning and development must take a great part in the future land uses, transportation and the creation of green belts, according to Mr. Gardiner. "Lands will be divided so that industries will go where there are the services such as water and sewers. There is a desirability for conserving green belt areas such as the Don and Humber valleys. There are immense possibilities there if we have the courage and foresight to take advantage of them and we must conserve these areas from advancing bricks, mortar and pavement," he said.

"The T.T.C. is a model of eficiency," he said, "but it is being strangled by motor traffic." He went on to outline the Wilson report which advised that all transit services in greater Toronto be brought under one system and large arterial highways be constructed with a "pay as you go" policy, an additional 10 cents on streetcar fares that would bring another million and a half dollars and an additional tax on automobiles that would bring in two and a half million dollars. Mr. Gardiner gave no opinions on the Wilson report.

"Such places as Aurora and Newmarket should be encouraged to set up planning boards," he said, "and conservation authorities should be set up so that the watershed between Lake Simcoe and Lake Ontario can be restored."

Mr. Gardiner concluded by saying that the "creation of a metropolitan area, divided between councils and a central authority is destined to failure because of lack of co-operation. We may find ourselves forced into an amalgamation in the future."

Bryce Browning, secretary-treasurer of the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district in Ohio, described the "Muskingum story" where the Ohio district of five million acres that was once ravaged by floods annually was restored by flood control and conservation. Since 1937 there were built 14 reservoirs and 10 artificial lakes that control the Muskingum river.

Mr. Browning also described a model farm in Ohio that was built up from a useless piece of land that would grow nothing into one of the best farms in the state. The farmer who purchased the land to make his living from it used the recommended techniques of conservation farming and now makes a sizeable income from it. "His secret was that he accepted the advice to use good farming methods," said Mr. Browning.

The 85 people at the Lake Simcoe conference were aware of the importance of planning and in the words of Mr. Browning, "any program will show the value of planning in a democracy. It is also essential that planners sell the idea of planning to the people."

Conference Recommendations

Jackson's Point — The need for an express bus service from Toronto to the east shore of Lake Simcoe, development of property on Lake Simcoe's north-east shore, demonstration conservation farming and a Holland River conservation authority were among the recommendations and suggestions at the citizens' planning conference here Saturday.

The following are points brought in the conference summary: The necessity to stir up interest in planning; planned towns attract industry; banks, railways and governmental departments should be contacted for industrial planning; co-operation with neighboring municipalities is needed in planning.

Recreation attracts industry; a multi-township board for planning recreation should be established in the Lake Simcoe region; it was noted that there was no proper metropolitan park area in Ontario; success of resorts depend on proper access to them; there is poor access to spots on Lake Simcoe; there is a need for wider spacing between cottages on Lake Simcoe; motels and cabins are needed on the lake rather than large hotels.

The new highway is needed south and east of the lake, on the 8th concession for better access to the city; it now takes 3 hours from Toronto to Lake Simcoe by bus with a 20-minute stop in Newmarket and there is need of an express service; the lakeshore road is dangerous and another should be built along the old radial line.

Farm planning, conservation farming was recommended in the region with examples at strategic points; more technicians are needed for demonstrating conservation farming; the county should pass a private tree cutting by-law, also subsidize woodlots by giving farmers free fences to keep out cattle; a Holland River conservation authority should be established.

Guernsey Breeders Hold Judging School

Seventy-five prospective exhibitors and future judges took part in a judging school at the farms of Jack Fraser, Concord, and C. F. W. Burns, King, on Thursday. Professor G. E. Raithby and Professor A. D. Runions were the official judges, giving expert advice not only on how to place the animals, but also on such obscure subjects as ring technique and deportment.

We put in some of the garden on the weekend and have already harvested a bumper crop of blisters, sunburn, broken glass, stones and several of the kids' toys which have been missing since last fall. The blisters are perennial, and we guess the sunburn is too because every year we forget what the sun can do to a winter-bleached hide. Every year, on our bed of pain, we swear to use a bit of common sense. And every year we succumb to the warmth and a desire for a fashionable tan with the usual result—a scorched hide.

The broken glass is a regular harvest, too. It seems that an old garage or chicken house burned down years ago right about where we plant our lettuce, and the glass which is so much a part of soil content comes from that. The ashes, too. What amazes us is that such a mixture has so high a level of productivity.

To keep the kids out of our garden, we fenced off a corner for them where they can plant their own crops. Geoff has put in beans and Stella peas. They are impatient gardeners. A half-hour after their mother helped them do their planting they had dug all the seeds up again to "see how they were doing". Geoff has taken off a crop of worms which he considers a legitimate harvest though we shudder at what he must have intended when he did it. "Gardens grow things to eat, don't they?" he protested.

Some 24 Junior Naturalists, led by Mrs. Vivian Wilcox, Aurora, went on their first hike of the season a couple of weeks ago. Travelling north from Aurora, members of the group spotted 24 species of birds including bittern, chickadee, cowbird, purple finch, flicker, goldfinch, grackle, red-shouldered hawk, golden-crowned kinglet and ruby-crowned kinglet.

Our bet is that the Junior Naturalists had a good deal of fun spotting those birds. It requires a quick eye and an observant eye, and a thorough knowledge of bird-lore. Bird watching attracts young and old. The constant appeal of the chance of observing a rarer species, the excitement of a slow stalk of some hidden singer, the pleasure in colors and music of birds, and the congenial association with others come of bird-watching.

The application of black-face for a minstrel show lets loose all sorts of devilry which is nominally held in check by the day-to-day conventions of business and society. Paradoxically, you know your fellow men better when they disguise themselves with wigs, gloves and liberal applications of black cream. It is no wonder that there are always applicants for a minstrel show cast.

The Lions Minstrel Show had good audience response—which is, of course, always encouraging—but we're sure the cast had more fun from it than the audience. Watching the contortions required to get the make-up on was a comedy in itself and obscured for us the troubles of getting the stuff out of our ears after the show.

From the Files of 25 and 50 Years Ago

Not a very large market last Saturday, according to the files of 25 years ago. Eggs were inclined to go up in price and butter down. Townspeople were paying as high as 23 cents a doz. for eggs, buyers 21 and 22. Butter sold from 28 to 35 cents a lb., chickens from 30 to 32 cents a lb.

The heavy rain on Monday evening caused a cave-in of the road on Millard Ave. where the sewer-pipe was laid last year.

Big crowd on the market again last Saturday, according to the files of 50 years ago. Butter and eggs were the principal commodities, the prices remained the same as last week, butter 11-13 cents and eggs ten cents a doz. Potatoes dropped in price and sold as low as 70 cents a bag. Asparagus and rhubarb were on sale at five cents a bunch.

A Worthwhile Project

The Newmarket town council has leased the fair-grounds to the Newmarket Veterans' Association for renovation into a sports centre. It is a project which will receive much encouragement from the citizens. The plans of the veterans are most comprehensive. They plan to install a fenced-in ball diamond with flood-lights, proceeds from which would help provide the other facilities to make the park an attractive centre for all outdoor sports.

The fair-grounds have been little used since the closing of the army camp there. Baseball and softball have been played there but it has been generally conceded that the situation of the fair-grounds discourages a large crowd. Spectators would rather see games in the more accessible Lions club park. The improved accommodation planned by the veterans may help overcome this. The installation of floodlights will also give the veterans and edge over the park when the nights become shorter.

The Newmarket Veterans' Association has undertaken to develop the fair-grounds into a sports park as a memorial to those from Newmarket who donned uniforms during the war. As a memorial, it becomes eligible for the provincial grants, up to $5,000, and the veterans' president, Mr. Douglas May, has indicated that the conditions of receiving that grant will be complied with.

In the meantime, the Newmarket Veterans' Association is making every effort to have the grounds in shape for at least partial use this summer. Work has begun on the removal of the asphalt parade ground as we write. The veterans have said they will welcome the assistance of all other groups in the community—as is fitting in a project intended for community use—and it is to be hoped they will receive that support. They have shown in the past that they are capable of undertaking large efforts. Assistance given them now will be a sound investment.

Restricted Cutting

Wood lots have for years been cleared with no thought for the future. This indiscriminate cutting has contributed largely to the sand hills and the barren slopes to the east and west of town and to the fact that the district is shadowed by the approach of water shortages. A crew spent last summer seeking water to augment Newmarket's supplies—and with no success.

The introduction of chain saws to the farm wood lots has hastened this irresponsible stripping of forest cover at an untold cost in loss of soil fertility, the continuing income of a well managed wood lot, and adequate water supplies for farm use. The purchase of a bush, its division into small parcels of land and its resale as a source of firewood has scarred the land with the mutilated stumps of trees ugly to observe but uglier still for their disturbance of nature's balance.

Indiscriminate cutting must be halted before the land is stripped entirely. It can be if the county council will act. There is provincial legislation for the restriction of bush-land cutting; it requires only county council approval to bring it into force in York. It has been strongly recommended in the past that the council take this action. The same recommendation was again urged upon county council Saturday at the Simcoe planning conference. Until the council acts, the exploitation of wood lots will continue, destroying in months what will take years to recover and in the meantime, placing the land under an increasingly intolerable burden of drying wells and eroding hills.

Suggestion For Fahey Lake

A correspondent suggests that the high land in what was once Fahey Lake be supplemented by fill to bring it level with the bank and the whole be converted into a park. The course of the river could be dredged deeper and straightened, lessening the amount of silt deposit. The Baque property could be brought, he continues, and added to the reclaimed property as public park.

The advantages of such a proposal are, of course, obvious. Newmarket would have an enviable stretch of public park within minutes of the business section and adjacent to ample parking space in Widdfield park. Convenient as it is to a main route to Lake Simcoe, it could be made into a very pleasant inducement to the traveller to stop awhile.

How applicable the first part of our correspondent's suggestion is we don't know. The next step in the Fahey Lake operation is still somewhat undecided, as near as we can determine, with council awaiting a report from the committee. There may be technical reasons against such a proposal but there is no question that it should be fully explored. The proposal would have the advantage, according to our correspondent, of being a good deal cheaper than any of the other intentions.

Nor is there question of the advantages of the purchase of the Baque property. What an asset it could be made into for the town, well worth the expenditure. Possibly there is land to the south of the property and along the river bank which might be purchased and added to the original property. That corner could be made into a public beauty spot, of tremendous value to the encouragement of business to Newmarket. That proposal opens all manner of possibilities. What a pity it is that there is no planning committee which could advise on this, and prepare long-range plans for its development.

Campaign Issues

The issues in the forthcoming election were obvious even before the date was set; obvious, we think, from the day the new leader of the opposition took his seat. The government would stand on its record; the opposition would challenge that record. So far, that is what has happened. The government can point to the high level of prosperity that exists in Canada, its vast social measures, its association with the beginnings of the North Atlantic Pact, its "one policy" for the country.

The opposition attacks the extent of its social security spending, its manner of conducting the business of the country, its taxation policies—in short, the methods of bringing about the happy situation Canadians find themselves in as a result of Liberal administration. For example, the Conservatives rail against border restrictions on one hand while attacking Canada's exchange position on the other, seemingly incapable of associating one with the other and improvements the one has wrought upon the other. Indeed, there are few chinks in the Liberal armor but that has not prevented Mr. Drew from trying to discredit the government no matter what the cost in truth.

The Conservative approach to the campaign was forecast quite clearly by Mr. Drew's headline-making tactics in the house. Several examples come to mind. There is Mr. Drew on Newfoundland. He does not think that Newfoundland should be excluded from confederation but he delays proceedings to insist the provinces be "consulted". A sub-amendment, that the provinces be also asked for their "consent", if Mr. Drew is indeed serious about "consulting", showed up this foolish tactic for what it is worth.

Mr. Drew on bureaucrats offers a similar example of headline hunting to no real purpose. He made a speech in Montreal containing the thinly-veiled insinuation that the government controllers had Marxist leanings. When challenged to name a government controller so guilty, Mr. Drew sought refuge in evasion and charges of misquoting. Again Mr. Drew claims communists have entered the armed forces. Challenged to name them Mr. Drew says nothing.

This sort of thing gives Mr. Drew the publicity he so evidently desires. But apart from the doubtful advantages of placing his name in headlines, it has accomplished nothing except to earn Mr. Drew his fast growing reputation for obstruction and foolish talk.

A challenger must do more than criticize if he is to win the confidence of the voters. He must be prepared to offer a better alternative to that which he attacks. On the record, Mr. Drew's offers are somewhat suspect. Ontario was promised 22 points when Mr. Drew led his party to power in the provincial elections. Most of them were ignored when his party was elected. Perhaps remembering this, Mr. Drew has been cautious in advancing a well defined program, indeed, any program at all. So far his campaign has consisted of nothing more than wild statements.

The Newmarket Horticultural Society has undertaken a "Clean-Up Week" from May 16 to 20, a project which should have the support of all. Newmarket has a large number of strangers passing through it during the summer and the memory they carry away with them will be influenced by the neat appearance of the homes and streets. A little bit of effort on the part of everyone during the next week will work wonders for the town's appearance.

With the summer tourist traffic about to begin, the erection of large signs indicating the location of parking lots will do a good deal towards the encouragement of shopping in Newmarket. The crowded Main St. and lack of parking space is no inducement for the stranger to stop and shop. All Main St. has a stake in the tourist business—let's encourage it, not discourage it.

Office Cat reports Catnips By Ginger

The alarm clock leaped to attention and called out 6.45 a.m. in a hoarse voice. I took a long swipe at random and knocked it to the floor where it unwound in a few painful tinkles as it giving its last whimpers before it died.

"So there," I said to it, leaning over the edge of the bed and giving it a final sadistic grip. I settled back into a nice warm slumber as the morning sun played gently on my whiskers. Suddenly I felt pain in my big toe as it was wrenched severely.

"Get up you lazy lout, can't you see it's quarter to seven?" It was Isabella, my apple dumpling, whispering sweet morning nothings tenderly into my ear.

"Okay, okay, sweet nectar of the lotus flower, give me a little time and merrily and I will be up in ten minutes. You just trot out to the kitchen and get breakfast ready and have some yourself," I said.

When she had disappeared back into the kitchen I sank back deeper into the soft mattress and pulled the sheet over my head. Just a few more precious moments of warm slumber, I thought. The morning sun shone in the south window at an angle. I wished it would hang in the sky at that one place forever so that time would stop in its tracks and let me sleep . . . sleep . . . sleep . . .

"Get up, get up, get up," cried Isabella from the window sill—but it wasn't Isabella, it was that darned jay bird screeching at me.

"Hey clout, get up," he cried, "don't you know that it's late o'ly hold that gets de woin?"

"Scram, yard bird," I retorted, "why don't you go somewhere else and get you your own worm. Anyway I don't like worms. I would rather sleep."

"Get up, get up, get up," he cried. I threw a shoe at him and he disappeared.

I settled back into warm slumber. I'll just forget about everything, I thought. So nice, so nice to be here in bed, in bed, in bed . . .

Problems slipped away and I was out of this world on a warm, fluffy bank of clouds where little lambs gambled and a small boy with hooves blew a tune on a flute.

Then chaos broke loose. Huge volumes of water splashed down on top of me. A booming voice cried "You!" and something twisted my arm and threw me to the floor. I woke up to find Isabella was standing over me with an egg lifter poised over my posterior and in her other hand an empty drinking glass.

I was marched to the bathroom to wash.

You know, once you get up these mornings life is so nice as you look forward to the beautiful spring day and you go merrily to work full of the spirit of spring and all that.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Letters to the editor are always welcome but before they can be printed, the editor must know the name of the sender. We have had several letters in recent weeks, all of them worthwhile as to content. Unfortunately, the senders have not identified themselves and until they do the letters cannot be printed. We will print letters over names such as "Reader", "Taxpayer", etc., unless the letter is in a nature of a personal criticism and then, in fairness to the persons criticized, the sender's name must be used. But otherwise, pseudonyms are acceptable if the writer's name is known to the editor.

by "Back Concession" The Top Six Inches

We cannot expect to hold our export trade if we do not have a continuous supply of farm produce.

It would seem that in the future marketing will be in control of the farmers. This will cost money and will be paid by the farmer. The farm organizations have some men hired to work for the interest of the farmer. We need more men and they will have to be paid.

Men whom we farmers hire and pay to work for our interests find that in the last 16 years, farmers have lost money in 11 of them and show the return on farmers' investment is out of all proportion when compared with that of 46 food companies which handle farm produce. When we are shown what profits are being made it is any wonder that the farmer has become dissatisfied.

It would seem that the farmers who have a good breeding and feeding program on the farm are the ones who are interested in the farm marketing act. How can we make farm organizations attractive so as to encourage farmers to join when our own organizations tell the farmer he must have a test on milk and cream, the right type of hog, light color for the yolk of the egg. Many controls which the farmer does not like are good for the farmer—but it would take a high pressure salesman to make some farmers believe that any good could come of them.

These controls have put the Canadian farm produce right on the top in eggs, bacon, cheese. Other countries, to compete with Canada, have to improve their produce. We have a long way to go in Canada. At one time a farmer just stayed on the land and worked, but not today. He must study the world markets and know what the export market demands. At one time the export of farm produce was just to dump our surplus, and it did not matter what condition the produce was in when it reached the consumer.

Today, our eggs are graded, cleaned and oiled for export. Eggs are one thing that Canada tops the world market in. Our rail grading has put our bacon in with the best in the world. We don't like controls and to be told what to do but what farmer thinks we can ever go back to the good old days when everything went? If you do not like what is happening in farm organizations, it is your right to attend and voice your complaint.

Eggs and pork are the in and out of the farm production. A farmer can get into poultry or hogs in one year. Milk and beef take at least two years or more. Just how to keep the farmer in poultry and hogs? There were plenty of suggestions but nothing decided on. Low and high price of food and the low and high price paid for eggs and pork—both these conditions would seem to be the reasons that we cannot fill our bacon contract this year. Breeding, feeding and marketing is the job for the farmer in future and we need plenty of education on all three subjects. Cheerio

Blind Campaign Raises
$1,237 In Nkt., District

Newmarket—The Newmarket and district advisory committee of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is pleased to report that their campaign for funds throughout this district has been a successful one. From donations and the tag day the total receipts to date amount to $1,237.12. There are still a few donations being received.

This generous financial support as well as the splendid cooperation received from all the volunteer workers and taggers enables the committee to maintain the services of the C.N.I.B. throughout this district. "Your help at this time is like a ray of light shining through the darkness surrounding our blind friends. It brings a promise of independence and active living to replace the fear of idle helplessness," said Mrs. J. E. Morris, chairman of the local committee.

In Memoriam

Lunau—In loving memory of Earnest S. Lunau, who died May 16, 1910.

He had a cheery smile a pleasant way,
A helping hand to all he knew.
He was so kind, so generous and true.

On earth he nobly did his best.
Grant him, Jesus, heavenly rest.
Ever remembered by his wife and family.

Montman—In loving memory of our dear mother, Elizabeth Monk-man, who passed away May 18,
1936, and our dear father, Thomas Montman, who passed away September 24, 1938.

In that bright eternal city
Where no tears e'er dim the eye;
In the home of many mansions
We shall meet them bye and bye.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by their family.

Taylor—In fond and loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs.
David Taylor, who passed away
May 10, 1917.

When all is still and silent,
And sleep forsakes our eyes,
Our thoughts are in the silent grave.

Where our dear mother lies.
Her thoughts were all so full of us,
She never could forget,
And so we think that where she is
She must be watching yet.
As angels keep their watch up there.

Please God just let her know
That we on earth do not forget.
For we love and miss her so.
Sadly missed by all, her daughter
Edna, son-in-law Roy, George,
Doris and Ruth.

KETTLEBY

The W.A. and W.M.S. of the Kettleby United church met in the hall on Tuesday evening, May 3. Mrs. Wm. Hodgson presided over the W.M.S. Mrs.
Hodgson gave a wonderful report of the spring rally which several of the members attended at Richmond Hill. It was a real inspiration to learn from Mrs.
Collohe the wonderful help our supplies are to our missionaries and mission hospital and to hear Mrs. MacLeod tell of her experiences in Formosa, and Mrs.
Struthers of the Challenge of China Today.

Mrs. Hodgson announced that Mrs. S. L. Fear, president of the Toronto Centre Presbytery, will be our speaker for next month's meeting. Mrs. Anson McCluskie presided over the W.A. assisted in the worship service by Mrs. J. E. Blatchford, and Mrs. Frank Billings. A solo was presented by Mrs. Martin Wassink.

Next month's shower for the bazaar is to be tea towels. The ladies are sponsoring a play on May 24, "A Couple of Country
Kids," presented by Vellore Junior Farmers. Watch current events for details.

The highlight of the evening was moving pictures taken by Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Bigford while on vacation in the West Indies. These pictures showed the great beauty of the Bahamas, the grandeur of the homes and sea-side hotels; Jamaica with its regal coconut palms, and the colored folk at its crowded street markets and above all the magnificent beauty and unusual coloring of the flowers.

We felt greatly indebted to Mrs. Bigford for a very enjoyable evening. Lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. C.
Black, Mrs. C. Watson, Mrs.
Itay Marshall and Mrs. G. Cam-bourne.

—Mrs. S. Doddemede, Millard Ave., returned this week from a two weeks' visit to her daughter in Toronto.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all my kind friends who sent me cards and flowers while I was in the hospital. Special thanks are tendered to my special nurses, staff and nurses of York County hospital and Dr. G. M.
Peever for his kind attention.

Mrs. Velma Meads.

IT'S A Woman's World

By CAROLINE E. ION

Spring with its promise of new growth, its bounty of wild flowers and its freshness of color draw many to the out-of-doors over the weekend. We took to the back roads and then for a leisurely ramble through the woods in the company of birds, sunshine and beauty which was quite breath-taking in its intensity. Following the Atherley gravel road to the Severn River we were overcome once again with the unusual greenness of its water, further heightened by the white spray and swirling current from the Severn Falls. The green of pine branches, the graceful white of the birch trunks provided a suitable background for the carpet of white trilliums, yellow, white and shy mauve violets and the occasional jack-in-the-pulpit. Wild flowering shrubs added their beauty to the surroundings. Dr. F. A. Clark has put it so well when he said of walks in the woods, "We have a chance to forget the little thing called 'I' and make a fresh start in the business of living, thus overcoming our inveterate tendency to get in a rut. While we are reading the parables of sunlight and the legends of green chapels we are increasing our physical health."

However, literally hundreds of callous individuals invade these premises of nature intent on destroying her beauties. Bark is stripped from birches; branches snapped from trees in passing; wild flowers picked and later thrown away or at best brought home to grace the mantle for a few brief hours. The law of the trail is to leave it as beautiful as it is found. Remember that some of Ontario's wild flowers are quite rare today because of this careless treatment in past years.

The quiet restfulness of the day was marred for us by a possible Mother's Day drowning. On our return trip we stopped at the park at Orillia and while there wandered over to the pier to watch three small boys undertake their first swim of the season. Since we have never liked to see youngsters in swimming unsupervised we waited to see them shiveringly protest that the water was fine. After much hesitation on the part of one lad he did a very fancy tadpole leap into the lake and was soon followed by the second and third. When the last boy failed to come to the surface and make no attempt to even "dog paddle" back to the wharf we were amazed to learn that he could not swim.

Now before someone can say that we are overly busy patting ourselves on the back, let me hasten to add that the point of the story is not that we did rescue the lad, but that his parents did not know he had gone swimming; that he seemed quite unaware of any danger until too late; and that there was no supervision of their swimming. May 12 may seem a bit early to begin worrying about children swimming, but a few warm days like last week and the old swimming hole looks mighty attractive. It seems so little to ask that just a bit of care be exercised in this matter.

An amusing note was added to the proceedings when our pooch, namely "Valiant Heart of Sharon" (you may call him "Val"), was accidentally pushed into the water and without a moment's hesitation swam to shore. Dogs sure is smart people.

We noted with pleasure that the CNIB campaign for funds in the community has received the generous support it deserves. A new service for pre-school children has been opened by the Institute. No definite schedule for the work has been developed but the training will centre around the individual needs of each child. One of the most important things, according to Miss Jean Whitelaw, who will direct the service, is to help the parents adjust themselves to the fact that they have a blind child. For us who have sight it seems the least that we can do—to help with our dollars.

May 10-21 is Clean-Up week in Newmarket. The motto is: "Help beautify our town through cleanliness." Sponsored by the Newmarket Horticultural Society it needs the support of everyone to be a success.

THE HOMEMAKERS

Ground Beef Offers Variety

Meat is usually the most expensive item on the menu. Ground beef, although classed as an economy meat, offers endless possibilities for rich-tasting, flavored dishes. A tasty sauce of tomatoes with well browned, ground beef when served on macaroni or spaghetti, as the Italians do, will make a satisfying meal for six from a half-pound of minced beef.

Every cook has her favorite recipe for meat loaf. This is one of the best meat stretchers; when served hot or cold no apologies are needed at the family meal.

1/2 Cup chili sauce
1/2 Tsp. prepared mustard
1/2 Tsp. grated horse-radish
1 Tsp. finely chopped onion
1/2 Tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 Tsp. salt
5 Slices bread, 1/2" thick
Combine meat, chili sauce, mustard, horse-radish, onion, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Toast bread on one side under broiler. Spread the untoasted side of each slice with meat mixture. Return and broil for six minutes at least 3 inches below broiling unit. Serve hot with tomato sauce. Yield: six servings.

MEAT BALLS IN TOMATO SAUCE

YOUNG HOPEFULS

When Dad Helped With Dishes

Peggy, a ten-year-old, revolted against drying dishes to test her mother's ability to boss her. It seems Peggy's friend, Marie, gave Peggy the idea. Marie was complaining about the way her mother bossed her—and boss, she did—then she added "But she can't make me dry dishes every night like your mother makes you!"

Peggy had never thought of her mother as bossy. She wasn't—so she defended the situation by saying that she helped with the dishes because she wanted to not because her mother made her. Marie wasn't convinced. She suggested that Peggy try not drying the dishes and see if she could get away with that.

That started Peggy thinking in foreign territory. She'd find out whether or not her mother would try to make her dry dishes against her will. That evening Peggy made the test. "I'm not going to dry the dishes after supper tonight," was all she said, but her tone was one of defiance.

With Knowing Glimpse

Before father could interfere, mother gave him a knowing wink and was meeting the situation with comparative calm. "Alright, Peggy—maybe your father will help for a change. It's been a long time since you've dried dishes for me, Sam."

"That's right, Dora—it's been about three years since you and Peggy practically pushed me out of the kitchen. Bring on an apron!"

Sam made much sport out of being admitted to the kitchen again. He was very fussy about which apron he wore. The apron had to match his tie and couldn't clash with his socks and it had to be just the right length, too. The tea towels had to be continually replaced with dry ones. Peggy joined her mother in cheering her father in his clowning acts and busied herself putting away dishes and straightening cupboards and drawers, disarranged by his antics.

Sam was very pleased with the confusion he had created and said as much—'Haven't had as much fun since you two chased me out of the kitchen three years ago.'

It was past nine o'clock when the kitchen was finally tidy—father hadn't read his paper, mother had missed her favorite radio program and it was Peggy's bedtime. As far as Peggy was concerned tonight was sure proof that no one was trying to boss anyone. As Peggy was saying "Goodnight" to her mother, she said, "Mother, please don't ask Daddy to help in the kitchen tomorrow night. I want to go to an early show."

Youth as well as adults, revolt against being bossed; and, likewise, aren't resentful under considerate leadership.

Newmarket Home-School Celebrates 10th Birthday

Newmarket — This year the Newmarket Home and School Association celebrates its tenth birthday. Organized in April, 1939, the group exists in order that teachers and parents can study together problems concerning the education of children. This working together to promote the development of children in the home, school and community is the job of the Home and School.

"Waging campaigns for better equipment, school libraries, curricula to meet the needs of youth, more provision for individual differences in children, better home and parent education, better parent-teacher cooperation, better welfare and health services for children who understand what the school does and how it functions; curbing harmful influences in the community," says Lela B. Arrowsmith is the work of all Home and School groups.

In Newmarket, the organization has a record of ten years of service. There were 58 members in the charter year. Mrs. M. B. Seldon read their names at the April meeting. Of these only five parents' names remain on this year's roll call, showing the new interest of each succession of parents as their children attend public school and then go on to high school. To Mrs. J. C. R. Edwards goes the credit of organizing the group locally. This year has seen the largest membership to date.

The Common Round...

By Isabel Inglis Colville

DID YOU HEAR THOSE LIONS ROAR?

This is not a critical review, for one can't judge anything to which one is contributing to even a small measure, so we will call this an impression. And the impression is a deep one, showing what can be done by two groups of amateurs working co-operatively under real leadership.

A minstrel show, especially with orchestra accompaniment, is like no other show on earth, for it is composed of so many essential parts—interlocutor, end men, soloists, speakers, chorus and accompanists and these have to be fused into a composite stream of entertainment which will flow along with no apparent show of the tremendous effort put forth to attain that smoothness.

Those who have never tried it have no idea of what it means to bring an amateur chorus and orchestra together. Each individual singer and player has ideas of how things should be done and starts off doing it, just that way. You see, that chorus had never sung together before, certainly not with an orchestra and the orchestra was an augmented one. Our small orchestra which had worked under Harold Jackson now found itself augmented by cornets, trombone and tuba and had to learn what that entailed. So right here was a three-ringed circus—soloists, chorus, orchestra, all looking askance at one another, but we had a genius in our midst—Bill Greig gathered us under his baton as a hen her chickens under her wings and we felt soothed, protected and courageous.

No doubt we felt at times a little as the performers in a circus do when the ringmaster snaps his whip, for that baton was wielded with authority, but it was also wielded with such a nice appreciation of what singers and orchestra could do, that it brought results which placed the whole show, so I've been told over and over, far above amateur standing.

Then in Alex. Eves as interlocutor, Jimmy Walker, Gene McCaffrey, W. M. Cockburn and Jack Luesby they had a combination that captured the audience while the soloists—Murray Huntley, Terry Doane, Charles Boyd, Jim Walker, Eugene McCaffrey, Johnnie Hines and Ken Ponting, each had something well worth while to contribute—in fact they sang so well that—well, have you ever been haunted? If you haven't and don't want to be, then don't go to minstrel shows. Many's the time the other half of the family and I wished Ken Ponting would get his watermelon planted if it would only get the melody out of our heads, and we've gone "Cruising Down Old Man River" with Gene McCaffrey, Johnnie Hines and Terry Doane till we felt we'd like to tip the boat and be done with it, and if we got those from going round and round in our heads, along would come Jimmy Walker going to his Alabama Barbaque or Murray Huntley giving us a glorious interpretation of Why Darkies are Born or he and Terry would take us, unwillingly—for we wanted to go to sleep—on a Louisiana Hayride or we'd wish Caroline would hear Charles Boyd calling, for no matter what we were doing—working or trying to get much-needed sleep, these songs sang themselves over and over again in our protesting heads—and the worst of it is, they're still doing it!

Old Black Joe portrayed by G. Wainman and the old Mammy by Del Gibney gave a true flavor of the old South to that scene. No minstrel show is complete without dancing and Art Evans gave this needed touch with an enthusiasm that captured his audience while the novelty quartet of boys and mouth organs played by A. Georgas, J. Meyer, C. Blodale and J. Walker took us back to the time when music such as this was the sole joy of the slaves. In this number they were assisted by a drummer, quite unique in the annals of music—Ang West—whose reading of music was an art not yet mastered by musicians and whose violin virtuosity and final drum touch made musical history. The same gentleman added many comedy touches throughout the show. The secretary's report, read by Ken Johns, was a masterpiece and the district governor's, George Byers, address was fine, as was the initiation of J. Hines, sponsored by Del Gibney. And now I'd like to say a word of appreciation to Alex. Eves who wrote much of the script, Bill Greig and Marjorie Blodale, also A. Higginson, the electrician, who bore the brunt of the preparation. We hope it will become an annual event, but there comes a criticism—not in May! Just one month before.

Next week I want to write of what may come out of a speech made by Hilda Tumelty at the party given to the whole cast by Chester Best.

Library Notes

By MRS. GEORGE CASE

A new book in the Newmarket Public Library which I should like to draw to your attention and urge you to read is "Earth's Grandest Rivers" by Ferdinand C. Lane. Call it geography if you will. It relates the romance of a shifting, growing and ageing earth and the role played by rivers in this evolution.

The author proceeds from this general description and discussion of rivers to the story of most of the great rivers of the world. As he unfolds the drama of their history and economic importance, these mighty streams take on an individuality and personality which makes them living, moving forces. This book seized my imagination as few do. You won't feel you are reading geography here. It is indeed a romance.

A novel written with more than ordinary skill is "The Heat of the Day" by Elizabeth Bowen, now considered England's most distinguished novelist. The setting for the novel is the London of the blitz and the story gives the reader a feeling of mounting suspense. This book stands well up on the list of popular reading.

Life of Friends Minister Job Hughes, Second Article Tells of Background

This is the second of a series of articles on Job Hughes of Yonge St., Friends' Minister 1805-07, by Ethel Willson Trewhella, and tells of the background of the man. The remaining two articles in the series will appear in successive weeks.—Editor

An account of a Quaker pioneer could not be complete if from the background the Meeting House were omitted. Temporarily the first small gatherings were held in the cabins of the settlers. This concern was first for a central place of worship. Meetings of Discipline convened here. As a symbol of ultimate permanency it fostered a community spirit which lessened the feeling of isolation. Due consideration was given to the selection of a site, and with approval of the Monthly Meeting a primitive building, fashioned in true Quaker architecture, was erected. It was an altar in the wilderness. Gently the spirit of the wilderness responded to the spirit of the altar. Such a one was the little log Meeting House at Catawissa, the building of which Job Hughes had been a zealous helper. Here he and Eleanor had joined with Friends in quiet worship.

Incidentally this building is still standing. It was built in 1789 and is very well preserved. This is largely due to an intelligent interest by the council of Catawissa and its public-spirited citizens who have long realized its historical association. In addition this Meeting House is one in which the ancestors of many of the families of York county worshipped more than a century and a half ago.

A further excerpt from the Journal of Moses Roberts in 1780 continues with a more intimate picture of the sufferings and difficulties of the young settlement:

"And I remained there quiet till the Battle of Wyoming going on two years ago, when the New England people came down the river and some of them told us we would not be safe 24 hours longer. Some said one thing and some another, so they frightened most of our neighbors away. And some of them importuned me greatly to go, too, to which I at length agreed, although with great reluctance, for it did not feel to me that danger was so near. So I went with my family and some of the neighbors toward Philadelphia to a house about six miles off, where the people were removed out. And coming on a shower of rain we concluded to remain there all night. But I had little rest that night for my conscience was troubled and it seemed to me that I had done amiss in removing, and if I went further I would be in danger of losing my peace with God. So I concluded to return at every outward hazard so I might enjoy inward peace.

"So in obedience to what I believe to be the great Master's Will I returned with my family and found His Peace to accompany me: and I remained there and attended meetings as usual, endeavoring to live every day and every hour as if it was to be the last, and labored to keep conscience void of offence towards God and man."

From extracts and other authentic data it appears that most of the Catawissa settlement of Friends remained during the Battle of Wyoming.

Quoting from a History of Catawissa by J. E. Eshelman and published by the Berwick Historical Society further interesting matter is related:

"In the morning of the 9th day of the 4th month, 1780, Moses Roberts and some of his neighbors were taken prisoners by several armed men from the town of Sunbury without proof against them or any witness being brought to charge them with anything prejudicial to any man or to the community. Being taken in a boat from the mouth of the Catawissa Creek down the Susquehanna River they were confined in Sunbury jail for ten days where they were persecuted to some degree. At the end of that time they were again taken down the Susquehanna River to Lancaster jail where they were confined nearly an entire year without trial. The wives of Moses Roberts and Job Hughes remained at their habitations waiting with impatience the return of their husbands, when on the 15th of the 6th month, 1780, a number of armed men from Sunbury turned them out of their homes, destroyed most of their possessions and took four horses from the several families. They were not even permitted time enough to bake bread to eat through the wilderness. They had seven children between them, one of which was not yet five weeks old.

"A committee of men and women Friends was appointed by the Meeting for Sufferings held in Philadelphia who represented the petitions of Jane Roberts and Eleanor Hughes respecting their plight and situation and that of their husbands to the Chief Justice, Thomas McKean; but he would afford no relief and was full of bitterness and reviling. These frontier Friends suffered greatly on the charge that they gave information to hostile Indians.

"Exeter Monthly Meeting records this minute on the 25th day of the 10th month, 1780—Exeter representatives report that their meeting thought proper to propose to this Meeting the case of our friends, Moses Roberts and Job Hughes, who, we believe, are unjustly confined in Lancaster jail, and who, they apprehend, require the care and attention of this Meeting. On consideration whereof Samuel Lee, Galus Dickenson and Moses Embree are appointed to visit them, enquire into their situation with respect to necessities and administer as occasion may require, and this Meeting will reimburse them.

"In the 11th month, 29th, 1780, at the Monthly Meeting held at Maiden Creek Meeting House we read—Samuel Lee informs the Meeting that he with the other Friends appointed visiting our friends, Moses Roberts and Job Hughes, and they do not find that there is any necessity for this Meeting to advance anything towards their support at present, being otherwise supplied. Nevertheless think it necessary Friends should continue to visit them, and inspect their case: the same Friends are continued to that service.

"At the Monthly Meeting held 1st month, 31st, 1781, appears this minute—One of the Friends appointed to visit and assist Moses Roberts and Job Hughes reports that he has visited them accordingly and is of the mind that five pounds should be raised before next Monthly Meeting for their use; the representatives of each Preparative Meeting are desired to take care that the same be raised between this and next Monthly Meeting and brought thereto."

The Exeter Monthly Meeting minutes are silent in regard to the time Moses Roberts and Job Hughes were released from jail, but it is generally believed it was in the third or fourth month."

During the years immediately following the release of these Friends from imprisonment the name of Job Hughes is several times met in the minutes of Catawissa Meeting where apparently he was a very active member and on different occasions was appointed to positions of responsibility. In 1787 he was one of a committee to enquire into the conveyance of a 'lot of ground' for use as a burial place.

"Again at a Monthly Meeting held at Maiden Creek the 26th of 11th month, 1788—Job Hughes informs that Friends at Cotowessey request the continuance of their Meeting which is granted under care of the committee until the next General Spring Meeting."

That Job Hughes testified to an abiding faith in the leadings and protection of a Divine Providence is made evident from the following which is copied from the Friends' Intelligencer of 1860:

"... Many years ago there lived in Pennsylvania in the County of Northumberland, in Roaring Creek Valley, a Friend by the name of Job Hughes, an approved minister of Catawissa Monthly Meeting. This Friend, on going out to his fields one morning discovered that his horses had escaped therefrom, and having purchased them a short time previous from some distance he supposed the creatures had endeavored to reach their former home, he immediately set out in pursuit, hoping to overtake them soon; but contrary to his expectations he travelled many miles before he found them. On his return he called next day to an inn to refresh himself and horses where he observed a stranger whose appearance caused him to feel somewhat suspicious that his intentions were not good. After his refreshments were taken and Job was about to start he requested the landlord to wait for his pay until he came that way again, it being a road he frequently travelled, as he had come from home unexpectedly and had no money with him. About this time the stranger put on his hunting accoutrements saying he would go out and try to find a deer at which Job felt some uneasiness as he started the same road he was going. As he rode along the stranger walked with him, sometimes by the side of the horse and sometimes behind, often changing from one to the other. These actions helped to excite Job's fears, as he said when the man was by his side he thought he intended to strike him from the horse with his tomahawk—and when he walked behind him that it was his intention to shoot him; but he endeavored to keep his mind quiet, looking to Him for protection who is able to say, 'Thus far shalt thou go and no further'.

After travelling in this way nearly two miles the hunter said he would go into the wood and try to get a deer. As soon as he was out of sight the Friend, feeling at liberty, rode on quite fast for two or three miles when all fear left him and he saw no more of the stranger.

When he arrived at home he told his wife the circumstance, remarking that he had no doubt but that that man would take the life of some person, as he believed he had such designs in his heart. This proved to be true for not far from the same place the next day he took the life of a pedlar and the rumor being spread of the missing man suspicion rested on the stranger and the aforesaid landlord, and they were both arrested and imprisoned. When brought to trial the hunter confessed his guilt and was condemned and sentenced to be executed. Previous to his execution he made a full confession of how he executed his cruel design, and how he was tempted the day before to take the life of an old Quaker—he knew not what for as he was aware he had no money with him for he heard him request the landlord to wait until he came that way again. Still he was tempted to murder him with the intention to execute his design and walked by his side intending to strike him from the horse, but when he looked in his face his heart failed him. Then he thought to walk behind him and shoot him which he vainly endeavored to perform. After changing his position several times his courage failing him he bethought himself that he might run across the woods and get ahead of him, as there was a turn in the road, and shoot him from behind a tree; accordingly he left the road for that purpose and ran some distance when suddenly he became very tired and coming up to a large log he attempted to climb over it but could not; his strength was nearly all gone and he sat down and shed many tears, but knew not the cause. It was some time before he sufficiently recovered his strength to leave the place, and on the next day he committed the awful deed for which, according to the laws of the country he suffered death.

This is written from the memory of a surviving daughter of Job Hughes who well remembers her father bringing home with him a printed copy of the murderer's confession. Calling his family together he read it to them, after which he for the first time rehearsed to his children the imminent danger their father had been in and by what power he was preserved—his eyes overflowing with tears at the recollections, in gratitude to Him whose powerful arm had kept back the blow of the assassin.—Eleanor Bowerman."

Casual sophistication might dismiss the above as indicative of untutored psychology. But the Psalmist of old and Job Hughes of the 18th century were as one in the knowledge that it was an unequivocal truth. How often, mid the difficulties and hardships of those hazardous years had Job Hughes looked beyond the gleaming waters of the river, absorbed in tranquil contemplation of the calm majesty of those Pennsylvania hills—to draw strength from their strength, to learn silence from their silence! Did the music from those Welsh generations in the soul of this intrepid Quaker join with that 'sweet singer of Israel' in those ageless words—"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help!"

Sharon—The regular monthly meeting of the East Gwillimbury council was held at Sharon hall Saturday. The members were all present.

A delegation petitioned the council for a sidewalk on Bolton Ave. and also enquired about a water supply. The representative was informed that both sidewalk and water were being arranged for as soon as material can be obtained.

The newly proposed county health unit was discussed for a considerable time but the council reserved decision until a later date.

The auditor's report was accepted by the council and the clerk was instructed to have the required number printed.

Due to agitation, the board of health have requested a by-law to be passed in regard to septic tanks and sewage disposal, particularly in north Newmarket and the villages.

if every man were his own bank...

SUPPOSE you had to cart cash around to pay your bills. Pretty risky business. Hard on shoe leather, too.

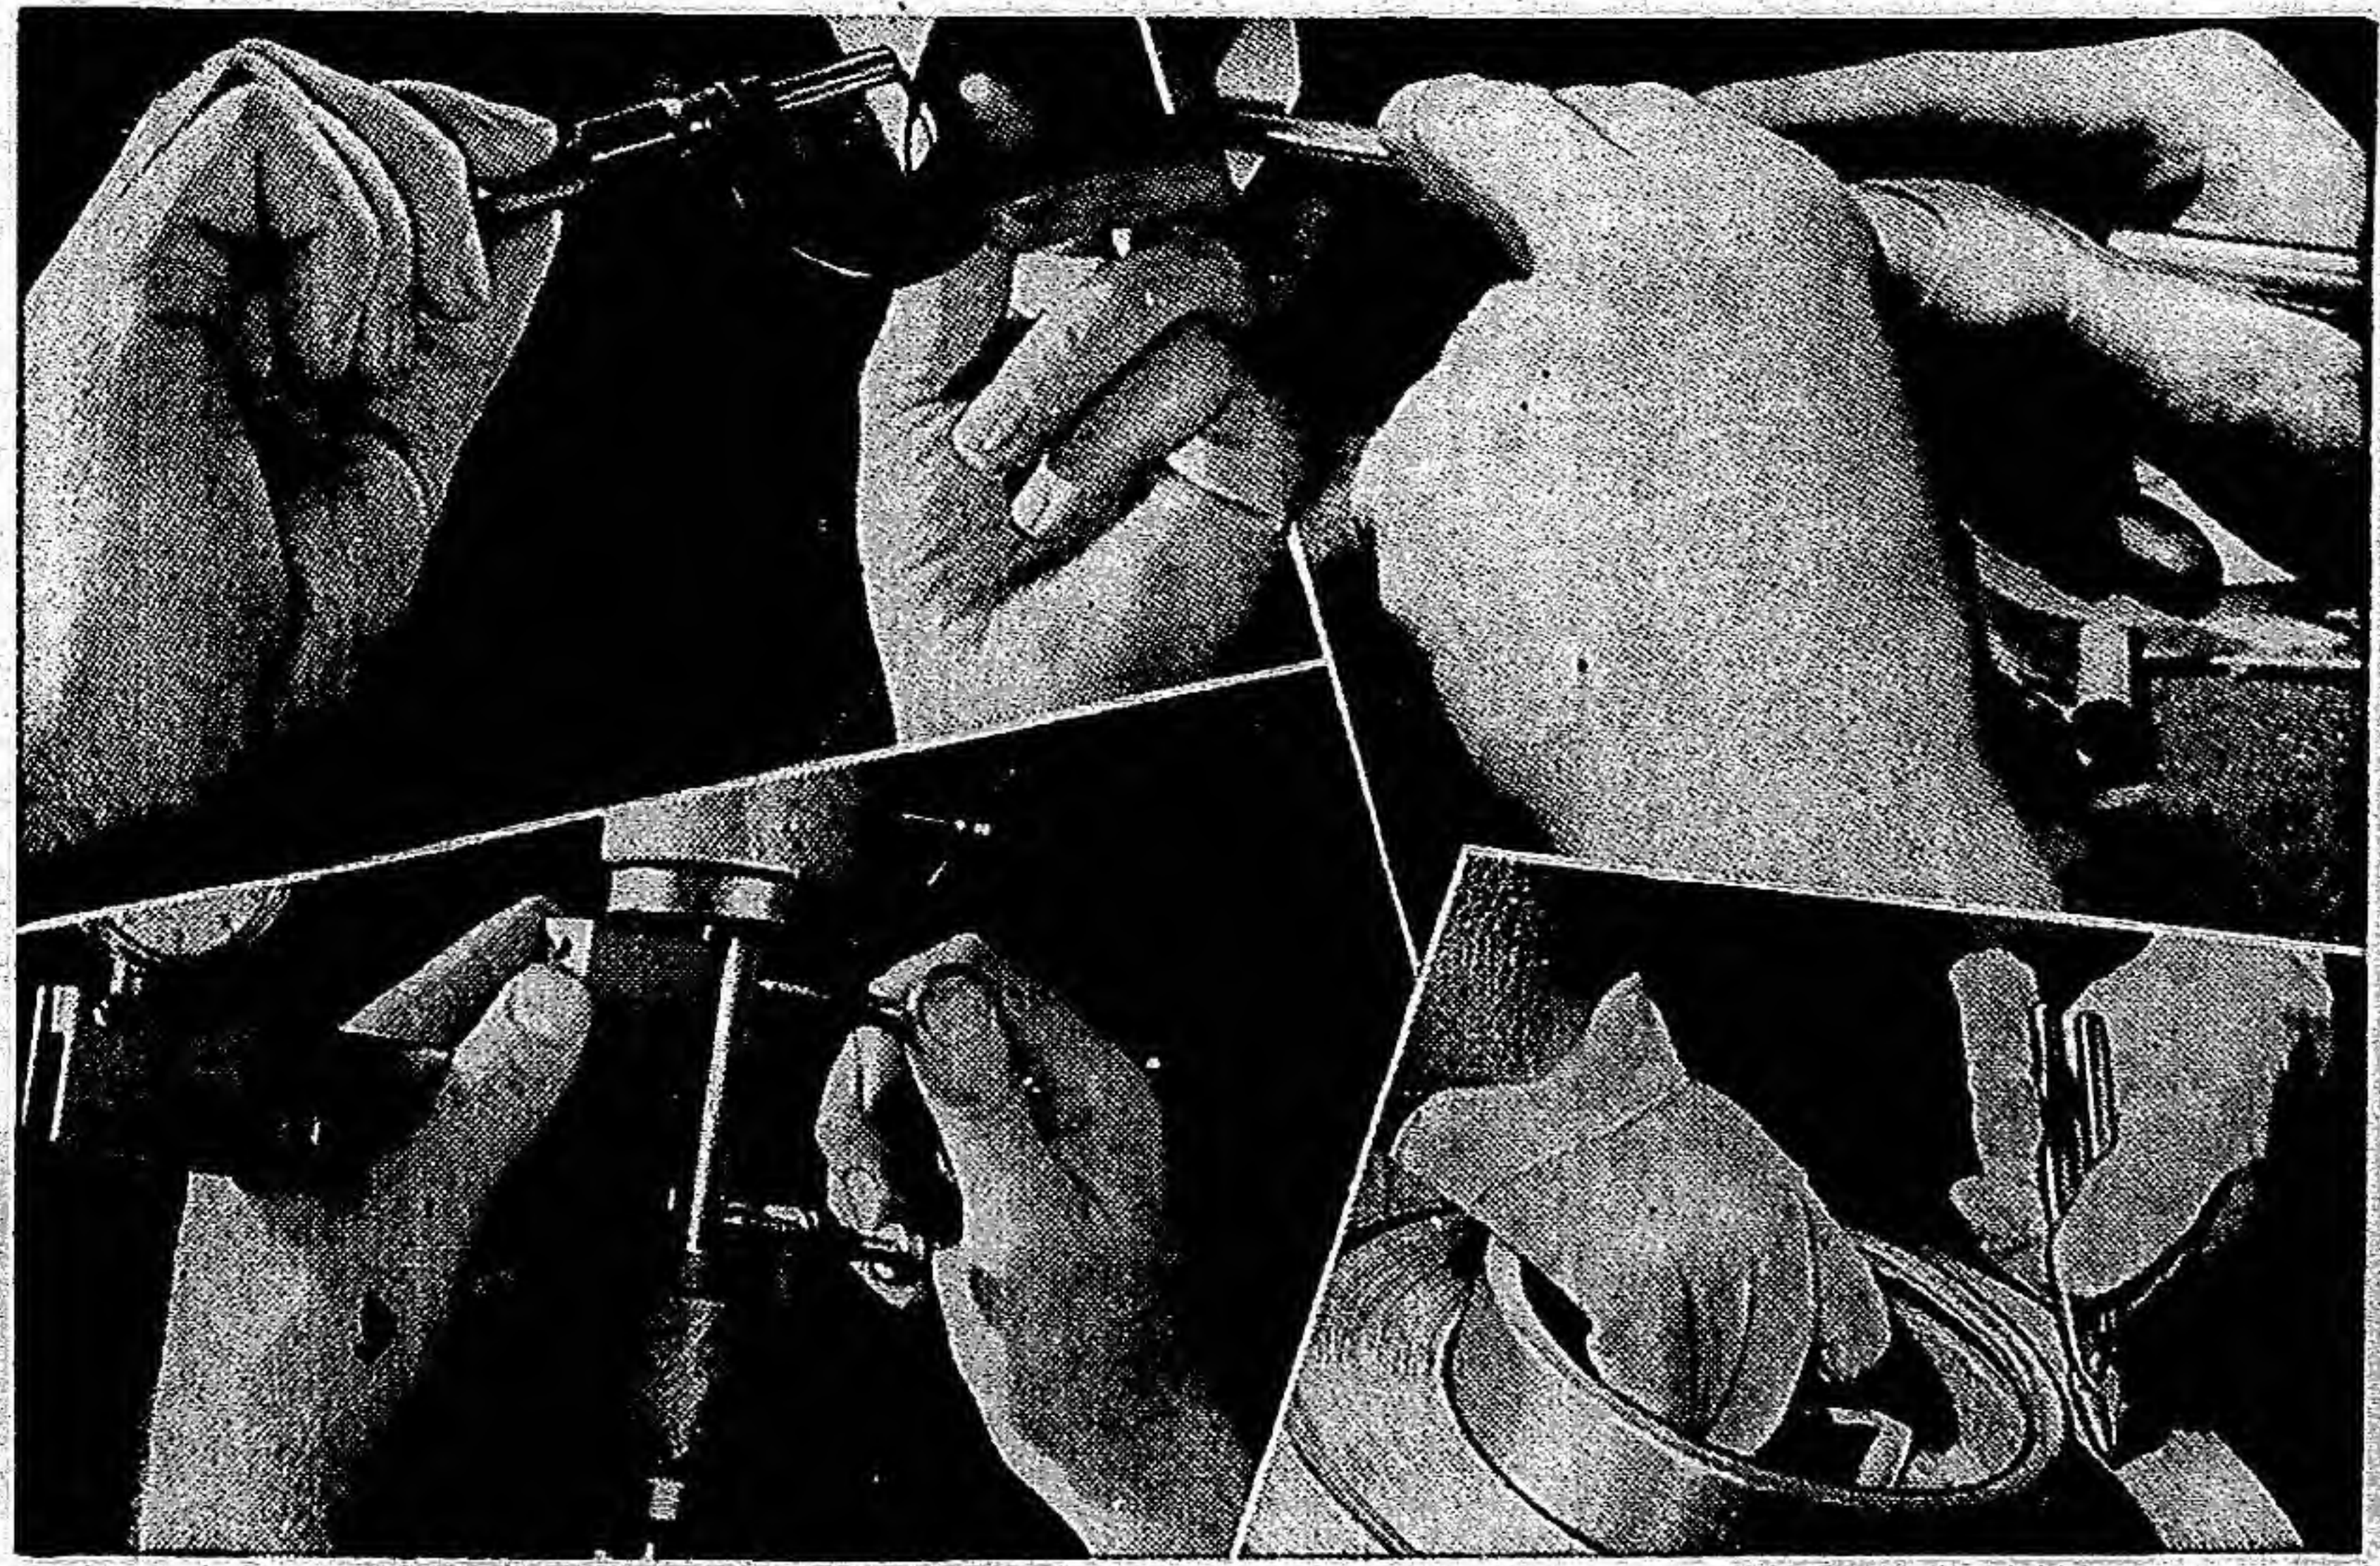

You don't do it that way, of course. Like everybody else with a bank account — there are seven million of them — you simply get out your pen, write cheques and leave all the bookkeeping to your bank. That's the modern way... easy, simple, safe.

Handling and recording your chequing transactions is an important job. Your bank must do it right — or a competing bank will. You'll see to that!

Suppose there were no competition... Could you expect the same efficiency, courtesy, eagerness to earn your goodwill?

HANDS IN TRAINING...FOR ONTARIO

Learning to Work With Copper and Brass

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living. Every single one of us, therefore, has a very personal interest in the flow of a steady supply of trained workers to industrial plants. These workers will operate machines which are important to our way of life.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity. For instance, every effort on the part of workers to become proficient in the art of shaping and moulding copper and brass, will mean greater industrial progress—will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and work.

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

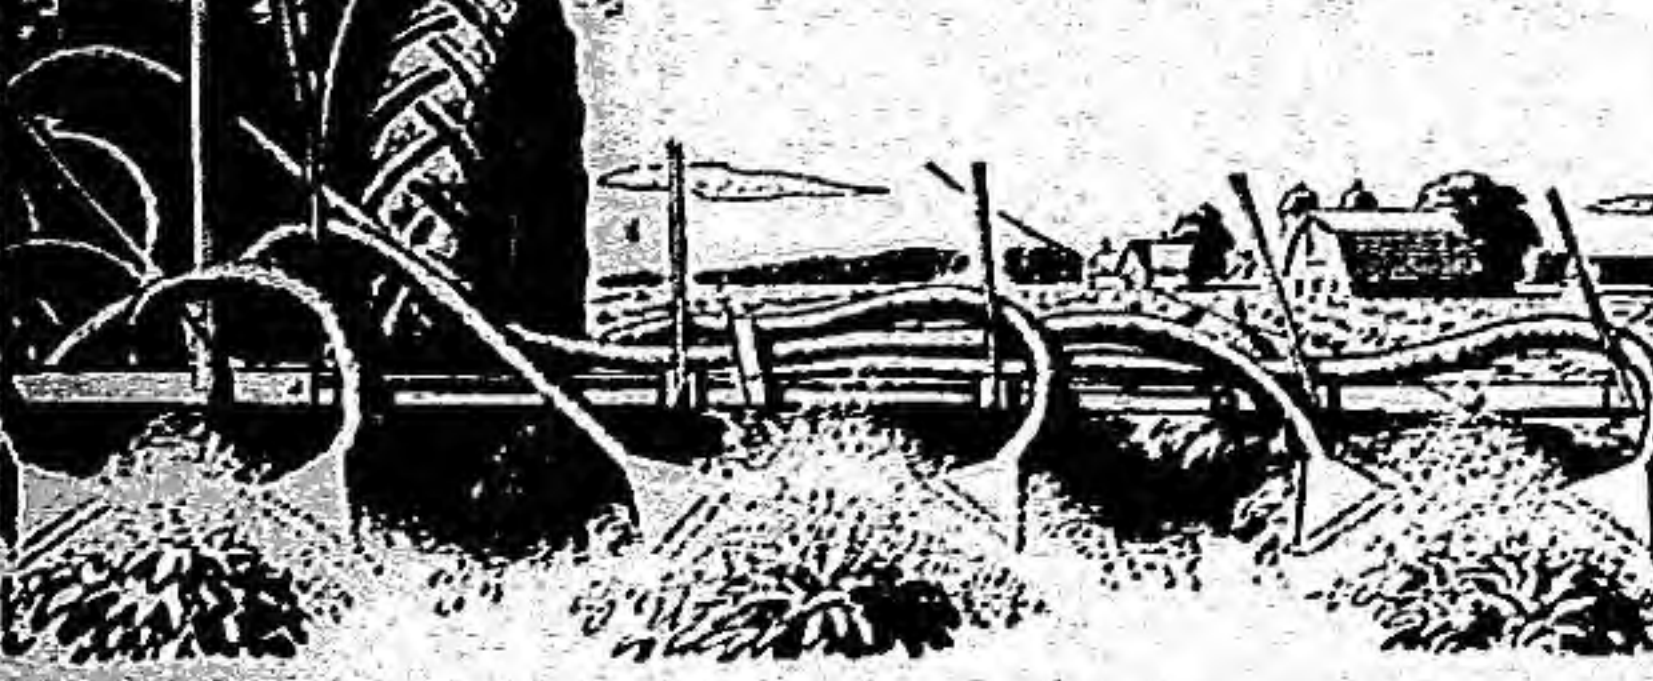

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy—that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. Arthur Kirbyson and Mrs. Fred Breckon. Bright spring flowers festooned the pillars and banked the platform. A very large gathering of the ladies of the community enjoyed the delicious lunch and friendly atmosphere of the affair. A table of home baking drew much attention and another table of aprons, fancy work and baby's knitted articles proved most successful. New Contests For Women

Feature of 1949 'Ex.'

Kate Aitken, director of women's activities, has some wonderful and novel contests planned for the 1949 Canadian National Exhibition. Prizes aplenty are provided for competitions that will be fun to enter. These contests are described in the new C.N.E. Second prize is $75, and the third, $50.

And here is a dandy project for your church or club group. Teams of three will be asked how well they know Canada, with different questions for each group. First prize is $100, second, $75, and third, $50.

News n' Views

By GEORGE HASKETT

So what's on our mind this week? We're feeling mighty low, mighty low. Yes, something like the chap finding four flat tires on his gas buggy just as he was about to leave on a holiday jaunt. The reason? Simple. Have a bantam baseball side in the making and a good one too. Some 50 from ten to 15 years reported to coach Frank Hollingsworth Monday p.m. There weren't nearly enough gloves to go around, one bat, no catcher's pads or mask. Now, how would you old time baseball men like to lend a helping hand? All in favor? Shoot any gloves or equipment post haste into The Era and Express and we'll see they get along to the right sources. That item taken care of, step over to our pet peeve. Here it is. Why the h-l can't something be done about the so-called hardball diamond at the Stuart Scott? It reminds one of Dennis' cow pasture. The painful feature is that it wouldn't take a lot of work to put the diamond into working order for both bantam and older series ball. If it's to be done this year, now is the time. Sure you may ask how about the Vets' Park at the fair grounds. It will help the diamond situation considerably. Still there won't be enough diamonds to go around if all the lads and lassies are going to get a chance to play ball.

By the by! Doug May and his Veteran helpers aren't wasting any time in opening business up yonder. First sod or should we say levelling exercises got underway this week on the old parade square. Quick march. Hip one two. The field will be completely levelled and the diamond draws attention next week.

Neighborhood dash: While perhaps not strictly a sport, Newmarket Trumpet band has always been ready to assist the hockey and ball teams. The band captured first prize at Niagara Falls Saturday in competition with nine other bands. A hand to Brownie and his lads, 49 strong.

Hoffman Spitfires close their ledgers Friday evening with a banquet and social evening. Lake Simcoe softball executive pass on players' lists and schedule May 16. If you chance to look in Morrison's window, and who doesn't, you'll find a group of exponents of the woods and water sport peering back at you. Can't see yet why they couldn't put down the euhre deck and chase a few rabbits. I gave 'em enough hints. Did so much want to get rid of that rabbit who chewed up an apple and a pear tree. Will forgive 'em if they give us some good fish stories.

Ladies' 4-Team Loop Opens Fire May 30

Four teams again face the barrier in the Barrie and district Ladies' Softball League this season. The roll call shows Newmarket, Midland and two Barrie teams. One of the Barrie squads will be Valley's, the second, at present in the organizing stages, is ready to round out the circuit. Copaco's, sponsors of one team last season, have faded from the picture and a new team is being formed to take its place.

An enthusiastic gathering of the delegates from the four teams on Monday evening in Barrie chose Frank Courtney as president, Geo. Storey of Barrie, retiring headman, remains on the executive to cast a deciding vote in the event of a deadlock in the matter of protests. Norm. Thompson (Midland) was named first vice-president, Doug. Hedger (Barrie), second vice-president, Archie Thompson (Barrie), third vice-president, Hazel Wright has taken over as secretary-treasurer to give the femmes a voice in their affairs. The league will operate a double schedule this season commencing May 30.

Protest fees have been placed at $5, but otherwise, with few exceptions, Provincial Women's Softball Rules will govern. In the play-offs first and third, second and fourth will meet in the semi-final round, two out of three. Finals will be a three out of five series. Newmarket delegates at the meeting were Frank Courtney, Orval Hisey, Vic. Giovanelli and Geo. Haskett.

Newmarket Ladies' softball team have practices booked for each Monday and Thursday evening.

The battle is over. It was the final round-up in the Monday Night Ladies' league this week and the champs are Edna McGrath's Duds with a 69 point total. Runners up were Claire Pollock's Owls with 66, then Floss Campbell's Shmoos 64, Mimi Giovanelli's Nitwits 62, Mona Dean's Humbugs 50, and on the bottom rung Hester Clark's Blanks 49. Phyl. McInnis topped the scoring parade Monday, the only 600 effort, with a fine 684 mark of 198, 246, 240. Alice Gibson was second with 593. Other fine scores on record were Edna McGrath 583, Claire Pollock 580, Hester Clark 565, Elsie Cline 561, Irene Abbott 542, Edith Wilson 541, Mary Osborne 540, Billy Blandy 528, Mona Dean 523. North Yonge Loop Still Looking For Teams Paraphrasing the caller at a square dance, "another couple is needed over here." In this case, it's another couple of teams. The North Yonge Softball held another gathering of delegates in Newmarket Tuesday evening and although the discussion covered a lot of in softball, no concrete plans could be laid. Not enough teams were represented, it was thought, to get the ball rolling. With this in mind secretary Harold Rogers, doing his best to get cracking, has called another meeting for Sunday morning, May 15, at the Club House in the agricultural grounds in Schomberg at 10 a.m.

To date Newmarket Vets, Aurora and Langstaff are sure starters. Schomberg will have the answer this week, according to Elgin Hastings, softball's headman out that way. Lansing will also give a definite yes or no in the next day or so. Fred Morris, who does a man size job of handling the diamond sport at Langstaff, will query Bolton and Woodbridge on the possibility of their coming in. If successful a seven or eight-team loop, divided in two groups, will be the outcome. The answer should be known Sunday, this being the last and final call.

Manager "Cegars" McDonald passes along the info that the Vets will carry on with their practice sessions each Tuesday Wednesday and Friday evening at 7 o'clock at the Stuart Scott school.

Mount At Vandorf Opens Loop May 19

A date to remember is Thursday, May 19, when the Lake Simcoe softball circuit begins. President Ross Chapman and his aides come in with good news that Murray Roberts will lead his Mount Albert champions of last year into Vandorf for the opening assault. Regular opening ceremonies will be performed by the executive. And the winner? Come and see for yourself. Here's the other early games in the schedule that will bear a look see.

Friday, May 20, Pine Orchard at Queensville; Monday, May 23, Brown Hill at Sharon; Wednesday, May 25, Zephyr at Willow Beach; Thursday, May 26, Pine Orchard at Mount Albert; Friday, May 27, Hope at Keswick.

Complete schedules will be available to the fans sometime next week.

The schedule is due to be completed August 12 and then into the play-offs. The league executives and delegates meet Monday evening, May 16, at the Sharon hall for approval of players' lists, and other business at hand.

Down The Centre

By T. A. M. (AB.) HULSE

Baseball bingles: The Tri-County circuit has gone independent this season and divorced themselves from the red tape and travelling of the O.E.A. Stouffville Intermediates and Sutton Intermediates, who both won fame in the circuit in yesterday, are entries this season and will undoubtedly prove their worth. Earl Cook, aided by Murray Holden and Ken Laushaway, are handling the Stouffville team and the club will be able to look forward to satisfied fans with the establishment of bleachers in the village park as a gift of the Lions club. All clubs in the league can draw from a 12-mile radius, which means that we may see some Aurora and Newmarket players in action with either team.

This year the moniker of the league is a bit askew as teams from York, Ontario, Victoria and Durham counties are included. The western group includes Sutton, Beaverton, Bolosover, Port Perry, Sunderland, and Stouffville. The eastern section has Cambray, Cameron, Little Britain, Lindsay, Orono and others. The movement of Sutton and Stouffville from district ball leaves Doug. James' Markham club little opposition, unless Newmarket and one or two more come to life with age teams. Yorker what has happened to Winky Smith and his Orioles who were the topic of hot-stove baseball conversation?

"Smitty," who has given years of service to baseball in the Stouffville area, was ousted from control in mid-season last year. We can't imagine him taking it lying down. Smith has his faults like everyone, but he can never be accused of not producing fighting teams, who know their ball, and he always fights to the last ditch for his boys.

Bill Allen and Ronnie Simmons will be in charge of Aurora baseball. Maestro Leonard Simmons has decided to sit in the background this year, although he'll lend a helping hand where needed. The status of Aurora teams remains undecided until after the practices, which started this week, reveal the possibilities. Bantam is a definite in Aurora, Newmarket, Richmond Hill, Stouffville and Markham. Richmond Hill teen-agers, anxious to have either junior or juvenile baseball this year, took to the press last week for help. Twelve youngsters, all with experience, headed by Norm. Stundin, former Aurora junior, and that nifty young prospect, Silvio Steffan, advertised in "The Liberator" under the heading of "Wanted a Good Shepherd." A special plea was directed to Teddy Bennett and Hank Grainger. We hope the youngsters get results, and we wouldn't be surprised to see Dick Mills, Tim Saul, and the lads who directed the midget hockey league come to bat in the emergency.

Miscellany: Stouffville Clipper players cut a $1,000 melon on their part for last season's efforts, mighty sweet considering the short season. Most of the boys will be back next year, so they say. "Shorty" Heard of Aurora was elected sports officer of one E-3, Canadian Legion, at the Zone meeting held in Stouffville last week. Mr. Heard promises to bring the cribbage and bowling competition to its peak and hopes to add horseshoes and other summer sports to the program. Rumor has it that Charlie Ryan would be interested in taking over the Aurora softball franchise in the North Yonge league. The dynamic Ryan would add strength to the Aurora management and would doubtless bring reinforcements from the Hill for the Aurora team.

Cyril Hamlin, who was one of the better known members of the Highlands Golf club before moving to New Brunswick where he has continued his golfing prowess, became a benedict this month, marrying a New Brunswick miss. Congratulations are in order. Harry Davis,

Tennis Courts Open For Business Saturday

The Newmarket Tennis Club on D'Arcy St. will be open to members on Saturday. The courts have been rolled and levelled and are in good shape. The club held its annual meeting recently with the election of a strong executive which is determined to make this year the best yet for the club. Tournament play of last year which saw Newmarket players matched against Aurora and Mount Albert clubs will be enlarged this year.

With a strong drive for membership underway, club president Bob Yates says that novices wishing instruction can have it from the club's players. "Even lend them a racquet," he adds. The courts are floodlit for night play, making it the more convenient for out-of-town players who can't get in until late in the evening. Everyone will be welcomed.

Summer Activities For Arena Considered

The matter of summer activities for the Newmarket Memorial Arena was the main subject for consideration at the regular meeting of the Recreation Commission on Tuesday. Rink manager Les. Beazer presented a draft of proposed events that should keep the rink busy. Number one is the Music Festival, May 26 and 27, in aid of the artificial ice campaign. It was thought, if the proper stage could be set up, that the rink would be the ideal location. The matter will be taken up with Director Herman G. Fowler immediately.

Other plans include an auction sale, horse show, carnival, sportsmen's show. Lacrosse, of course, will require at least one evening a week for home games. Also mentioned were boxing and wrestling bouts using both local and outside talent.

Moving over to outdoor sports the commission signified its intention of assisting the bantam ball club in every way possible.

Rangers, Cadets Parade For Annual Service

Aurora — On Sunday, May 8, the Queen's York Rangers, St. Andrew's College Cadet Corps, Aurora High School Cadet Corps and Aurora Public School Cadet Corps held their annual church parade. The cadets looked very smart and much credit is due to their leaders.

The Cadet Band was indeed a credit to the High School and town. The boys looked very smart with their new cords for their trumpets and lanyards. Rev. R.K. Perdue, chaplain of Queen's York Rangers, took charge of the service. The High School inspection will be held on Thursday of this week.

Struck by Golf Club Child Said Recovering

Aurora — Resulting from an accident when he was struck on the head with a golf club Tuesday evening, Ronny Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Chapman was rushed to the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, to undergo an operation. His condition is satisfactory according to Dr. Crawford Rose who took him to hospital after the accident.

Ronny was accidentally struck over the head by a playmate who was wielding a golf club on Tyler hill about 8:45 on Tuesday night. Dr. Rose said yesterday that he had suffered a repressed fracture of the skull and underwent an operation at the hospital.

SMITH NOMINATED

In the higher brackets of the civil service. Again he has not been able to substantiate these charges. One must be in Ottawa to fully realize what a vicious person George Drew really is," he concluded.

Mr. Smith is the publisher of the Richmond Hill Liberator, a weekly newspaper. Married and the father of three daughters, he was born in Lindsay, moving to Richmond Hill after a wide range of newspaper work 23 years ago. He has always been active in town affairs and as sitting member in the last session had the opportunity to carry out his belief that the duty of a member of parliament is to serve "all the people, irrespective of party, race, color or religion."

Newmarket Lacrosse Club will hold work-outs at the rink Monday and Thursday evenings from now on. The lacrosse lads are enjoying very good attendance to date.
